Dear PURA Executive Secretary,

I am writing to oppose Eversource's proposed rate increase in Docket No. 26-05-10.

I am a residential Eversource customer in Guilford, Connecticut. My electric bill has already risen substantially since 2017, even though Eversource says this is its first delivery rate review since then. Supply charges, transmission, and public benefits charges have all increased in the meantime, including the supply rate doubling in January 2023 and the public benefits charge spike in July 2024.

I installed electric heat pumps in my home, following the state's recommendation to electrify heating and reduce fossil fuel use. That means I use more electricity by design, and I now rely on electricity for heating. Raising delivery rates by up to 18%, about $33 a month for an average residential customer, would penalize exactly the electrification the state asked homeowners to do, and make the heat pumps more expensive to run.

I urge PURA to reject the proposed increase, or at minimum reject the full $727 million request.

Thank you for considering my comment.

Sincerely,
Greg Mauro
