Request from: Public Utilities Regulatory Authority

Question:

Sunrun Inc, Tesla, IGS, Connecticut Solar & Storage Association, GoodLeap, and Earthlight Technologies Comments, May 28, 2026, p. 14. Confirm that PowerClerk can currently receive an uploaded, signed customer disclosure form as part of RRES application, and that no customer disclosure form information must be entered as part of the RRES Program application.

Response:

Eversource's PowerClerk application portal currently allows an applicant to upload a signed customer disclosure form when completing submission of the Residential Renewable Energy Solutions ("RRES") application. While the signed customer disclosure form may be uploaded directly, applicants are still required to complete data fields in PowerClerk, some of which may contain information that also appears on the customer disclosure form. Data fields are typically required in PowerClerk if they are necessary to complete other data reporting requirements.
